	Explanatory Note

	Companies are recommended to assess the risks related to the potential theft or compromise of their technology, data or		139-141 tellectual property in connection with their operations, as well as how the recognition of these risks may impact their		100 141 usiness, including their financial condition and results of operations, and any effects on their reputation, stock price and longerm value. Where these risks are material to investment and voting decisions, they should be disclosed, and we encourage ompanies to provide disclosure that allows investors to evaluate these risks through the eyes of management. Please note hat disclosure about these risks should be specifically fit to a company's unique facts and circumstances. We trust that co	orporations should continue to consider this growing area of risk and evaluate its materiality on an ongoing basis.
	urther, the Company should not make such detailed disclosures that could compromise its cybersecurity efforts – for ex	xample, by providing a "roadmap or product details" for those who seek to penetrate a company's security protections.
H	lowever, companies should disclose IT governance and cybersecurity risks and incidents that are material to investors, ncluding the associated financial, legal, or reputational consequences, if any.
